BE CAREFUL HOW YOU MARK YOUR AUSTRALIAN BALLOT

Taking a ruling in strict conformity with the law, Judge William H. Williams in the Superior court, yesterday afternoon threw out 84 of the 760 ballots cast at the last election in the wn of Fairfield. This does not affect the result of the election but will have an important bearing on the future use of the Australian ballot and the voters who have occasion to use the voters who have occasion to use this ballot should give careful heed.

The Australian ballot was used at the polls for the first time. Of the number thrown out 34 were not disputed by the contestants as there were no marks upon them to indicate the choice of the voter. The other fifty were thrown out by the court because of various digressions from the law.

the law.

In some the circle at the top was double crossed others had a cross in each circle, others were marked with the word "Yes" another was marked in ink whereas the law says pencil; another thrown out as the voter has made a large criss cross through the full Republican list, others made circles in the squares opposite each name, others voted for two candidates for the same office, others voted for candidates on the ticket for one office, whereas they were candidates for candidates on the ticket for one office, whereas they were candidates for another office. These and other 'bulls' confronted the court, who rulthat all must be thrown out. The counters could have come to a decision on a number of the ballots but they put the matter up to the court for a ruling. The decision will have considerable bearing on the next election, making it quite simple for moderators to make their rulings.

The recent recount did not bring about any changes in the officers selected Charles S. Fox as the returns on election night showed, being returned as first selectman. Following is the result of the recount:

the result of the recount; For first selectman—Fox 345; Rowe Fox majority 10. For second selectman—Lobdell 374; Brothwell 303, Lobdell's majority 71.

Brothwell 303. Lobdell's majority 71.

The action came before the court at the request of Mr. Brothwell and seconded by other selectmen. It was noted after the election that there was a number of ballots missing. Yesterday's recount showed that 44 split ballots had not been counted for second selectman. The recount showed that Mr. Brothwell secured 22 votes and Mr. Lobdell 44. Mr. Browe did not gain enough to wipe out Mr. Fox's lead, the latter still continuing as first selectman.

Every piano in the above list can be purchased at the prices quoted. A small deposit, say $10, and your promise to pay $5, $6 or $7 per month or more, will send a piano home. We have revarnished the case, installed new parts, action, hammers, felts, strings, tuning pins, pedals, etc., etc., wherever necessary. This work has all been done in our factories, where every facility is at hand, and is not to be compared with the tuning and polishing done by smaller concerns on socalled "sale pianos."

Why not drop in tonight—or to-morrow evening? We are open even-ings during this sale to accommodate those who cannot find time to call-during the day—and then there are not so many other buyers. We would like to encourage evening callers so that we can give every one the most courteous attention. COME IN TONIGHT IF POSSIBLE

Fairfield Republican Ring Nominates Him-Democrats Choose a Good Ticket

Two sterling citizens of Fairfield—Cassella V. Brothwell and William O. Burr, were nominated by the Democrats of Fairfield last evening as their capabilities for representating candidates for representatives in the next State Legislature. Against them the Republican machine has pitted Judge Elmore S. Banks and Fred W.

Northrop.

Before the Republican caucus, Judge Banks, with a thoughtful smile and a wink in his other eye, stated that he was not a candidate for the Republican nomination. Meanwhile everything was cut and dried so far as the Republican machine was concerned and Judge Banks was well assured that his statement would not be taken seriously by the little coterie comprising the Republican ring in Fairfield.

After we were landed on the deck of the Trent we could see what was left of our airship floating off to the westward at a speed of about 25 miles an hour."

New York, Oct. 19—Despatches received by the United Wireless from Operator Ginsberg on the Trent, which picked up the Wellman party at sea, say that although they escaped from the airship, they had a narrow escape from the sea.

This, Ginsberg declared, was when they had boarded the lifeboat which had been hanging below the America. They were safe from their trip in the air. But the Trent bore down upon them at full speed and for a time the Wellman party thought the lifeboat would be cut in two. They were all preparing to jump overboard and swim away from the churning propellers. The Trent, however, passed close alongside and threw a line which the survivors could not hold because of the rough sea. Then the Trent turned and headed back toward the life boat. The party in the small craft got out oars and tried to hold her nose up into the sea. The Trent again passed lines but again they were torn from the hands of the rescued by the pitching of the boat. Wellman had his finger severely injured clinging to the ropes.

After several unsuccessful attempts the line was held, Loud and Simon and Vaniman straining on the oars to keep the lifeboat in position. The boat was drawn alongside the Trent and the survivors came over the side on a rope ladder, amid great cheer-
